Under the Bombay Rationing (Preparatory and Continuance) Measures Act, 1947, there is no provision on the lines of section 6(f) of the repealed Act under which the removal of any letters etc. from a premises within a period specified by notification thereunder was an offence. Under the new Act, the act of removing etc. of letter, marks or numbers with which have been painted or affixed is an offence and there is no necessity of extending the period from time to time unlike under the old Act. No action by Government is now necessary with reference to the notifications at page 1.
